

Course Code	Course Title	Pre-requisite	Credits
ARB 102	Communication Skills in Arabic	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ARB 202	Writing Skills in Arabic	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ARB 110	Communication Skills in Arabic For Non Native Speakers of Arabic	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ARB 220	Writing Skills in Arabic For Non Native Speakers of Arabic	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ISL 101	Foundation of Islamic Culture	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ISL 201	Foundation of Islamic Economy	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ISL 110	Foundation of Islamic Culture For Non Native Speakers of Arabic	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3
ISL 220	Foundation of Islamic Economy For	ORN 02R ORN 02C	3

	Non Native Speakers of Arabic
SOS 101	Saudi Heritage	ORN 04R ORN 04C	3
PHL 101	Critical Thinking	ORN 04R ORN 04C	3
PSY 101	Introduction to Psychology	ORN 04R ORN 04C	3
SOS 102	Introduction to Social Science	ORN 04R ORN 04C	3
CHI 107	Chinese Language	ORN 04R ORN 04C	3
ENG 101	English Essay Writing	ORN 05R ORN 05C	3
ENG 201	Technical Report and Business Writing	ENG 101	3
ENG 202	Technical Report Writing	ENG 101	3
ENG 103	Introduction to English Literature	ORN 05R ORN 05C	3

Course Description Arabic Courses:

ARB 102: This course aims at teaching the students the basic rules of the Arabic language, which makes them able to read and write correctly and clearly. As well as providing them with the most important skills that can help students with the skill of reading, speaking and listening, which makes them able to speak in front of the audience and be able to manage any dialogue with confidence.

ARB 202: This course aims to giving the student the most important skills for learning writing for jobs such as administrative writing, preparing reports and writing a CV. It also aims to teach the student the correct methods of writing and focus on that the student knows writing text without spelling, stylistic and linguistic errors.

Arabic Courses for Non Native Speakers of Arabic

ARB 110: This course focuses on basic skills of communication of Arabic for non-native speakers of Arabic language, to learn about: Introducing yourself, Family and Relatives, Dates and times, Numbers, Colors, Occupations, Countries, Pronouns, Food and drink...

ARB 220: This course focuses on higher level of learning Arabic language, like: writing skills in general, some culture phrases, types of verb, comparative forms, address, home and furniture, school, talking politely, places, sport, and directions.

Islamic Studies:

ISL 101: To illustrate that The Islamic nation is distinguished from other human nations by its ancient culture In its source, components, elements and characteristics , as well as to promote feelings of pride in Islamic nation. Moreover, to provide the student with Adequate knowledge related to Islam as a doctrine, a law, an approach to life, civilization and a religion that fit for mankind all the times and places. Furthermore, to clarify Islam position of the global issues of the day in the theoretical, and applied sciences fields and discussing them from an Islamic perspective. As well as, to Immune students against contemporary challenges and intellectual invasion, which aims to dissolve and dilute the Islamic character. Explaining the greatness of Islam and its ability to achieve true happiness in this world and the hereafter.

ISL 201: Introducing the Islamic approach of the person's economic life in relation with money as in earning or spending. Illustrate the provisions of and rules

Islamic Shari'ah that regulate the economic life and financial transactions. As well as to show the comprehensiveness and completeness of Islam in terms of caring for economic matters in various fields. Making a comparison between Islamic and Ordinances law characteristics. To clarify the ineffectiveness of the economic ordinances law in solving economic problems and their fluctuations. As well as keeping student in touch with the contemporary economic issues.

This curriculum also addresses the definition and the foundations of the Muslim community, the reasons for strengthening social ties, the most critical social problems, the importance and the status of the family in Islam and responding to suspicions, protective factors for the family, engagement and its general provisions, marriage, its pillars, terms, and purposes, the implications of the marriage, the provisions of divorce in Islam and to distinguish it from divorce in the Jewish and Christian laws.

Islamic Studies for Non Native Speakers of Arabic

ISL110: What is the main purpose for this course?

1. Provide the student with an appropriate Islamic teaching.
2. Develop the student understanding about Islamic Culture.
3. Develop an immunization to the Muslim's mind against cultural invasion.
4. Presenting the correct image and perception of life, universe and humanity.
5. Identifying the correct method in dealing with others.

ISL 220: What is the main purpose for this course?

1. Provide the student the outcome of appropriate knowledge on the Islamic economic system.
2. Comparison between the existing economic and the explanation of its disadvantages.
3. Identification of the Islamic rules in the existing financial transactions.
4. Clarification of the Islamic rules in the financial dealings.
5. The linkage between the Islamic economic and social systems.
6. Enlightening the greatness of the Islamic rules and regulations in economic aspects.

Humanities Electives:

PHL 101: This is a general academic course for all students to be equipped with critical thinking skills that they need in their academic, professional, and personal life. The primary goal of this course is to develop the students' innate rational capacities so that they become rational thinkers who are in charge of their own reasoning and break free from egocentric forms of impulsive thinking. Although the course follows an international curriculum it is custom based to the Saudi Arabian environment

PSY 101: The course will give a history of general psychology, phases, and development. It will also touch upon important subjects on modern psychology, such as: motivation, drivers of behavior, mental processes: thinking, perception, language, attention, memory, intelligence, and individual differences.

SOS 101: Course covers topics about Saudi heritage in its material and non-material dimensions and its extension throughout history by studying the heritage left by previous generations, such as historical sites, ancient palaces, lyrical heritage, performing arts, governance and proverbs, stories and poetry, and the relationship of this with man in a precedent time period. And the importance of this heritage as an identity, memory, and civilization interface for our country through its inspiration to our contemporary arts and modern architecture and its economic and tourist use.

SOS 102: This is a general academic course for all students to provide students with a basic conceptualization of how society and nature influences life. This course will focus on the sociological perspective, introducing basic concepts, theories, perspectives, and methods of analysis. This will then be used to explain real life topics, including culture, social structure, social groups, organizations and networks, and how this effects society globally. Although the course follows an international curriculum it is Saudi Arabian environment will be focused on where possible.

CHI 107 : This course provides basic knowledge about Chinese language, including Chinese pronunciation, character writing, reading, listening, dialogue and Chinese culture.

To know some basic knowledge about Chinese:

- Develop students' ability to understand Chinese pronunciation,.
- Distinguish different syllables as opposed to Arabic.
- Study and practice Chinese character writing.
- Study and practice Chinese daily conversations.
- Recognize China's culture including China's different ethnic groups, cultural traditions, holidays, China's Muslim and art.

ENG 101: This is an advanced-level writing course. It is aimed to: (A) prepare the students with the necessary tools for writing both academically and professionally, (B) help them improve their writing skills, and refine their research skills. Learners will be required to read, write, research, analyze and evaluate research papers. They will also learn to write their own research paper.

ENG 201: This is a technical report writing course. It is aimed at students who will be able to improve their ability to read, understand and write technical reports, and use engineering English effectively. Learners will be required to read, research, analyze and evaluate technical and engineering-related material. They will also write a variety of informative and analytical reports with a technical and engineering English related focus.

ENG 202: This is a technical report and business English writing course. It is aimed at students who will be able to improve their ability to read, understand and write technical reports, and use business English effectively. Learners will be required to read, research, analyze and evaluate technical and business-related material. They will also write a variety of informative and analytical reports with a technical and business English related focus.

ENG 103: This course provides an introduction to the four primary genres of literature: fiction, non-fiction, poetry, and drama, while exploring the nature, forms, and characteristics of each of the literary genre. It aims at introducing students, in general terms, to the various literary movements and the different literary periods. It also aims to examine how various forms of literature are adapted and utilized through various media such as TV shows, films, video games, and hit records, and therefore, drawing a link between the study of literature and its practical uses in everyday life. Students will acquire the ability to recognize and analyze fundamental elements of each literary genre through corresponding projects